Company Description†

Mid Wynd International Investment Trust plc ("the Company") aims to achieve capital and income growth by investing on a worldwide basis. Although the Company aims to provide dividend growth over time, its primary aim is to maximise total returns to shareholders.

Since 1st October 2023, the portfolio is managed by the Lazard Global Quality Growth team. The team aims to achieve capital growth by investing in global stocks, selecting what it considers to be high-quality companies ("Compounders") with specific characteristics. These are companies the team believes will generate high returns on capital, meaning they are efficient at turning capital – the money used to run a business – into cash and profits. These businesses typically reinvest the money they make into their businesses at similarly high returns on capital to help them grow over the long term, potentially making these companies more valuable in the future. Prior to Lazard's appointment, the portfolio was managed by Artemis Investment Management.

† There is no assurance that the Mid Wynd International Investment Trust plc's objectives or performance targets will be achieved.

Commentary

Global equity markets advanced in February, as strong earnings results, particularly in the US, bolstered risk appetites. Enthusiasm was tempered by ongoing uncertainty about the timing of interest rate cuts from key central banks. Stock selection in the health care sector contributed: IQVIA rose after the company reported strong quarterly earnings with upside from the Technology & Analytics Solutions segment and encouraging end-market data points. We like IQVIA's strong financial productivity, driven by solid revenue growth, consistent margin expansion, shrewd capital deployment, and a capital-light business model. Stock selection in the consumer staples sector contributed: Estée Lauder rose after the company reported a strong operating profit beat and sales growth at the high-end of the guidance range. We believe structural changes in the fragrance and US businesses, expected profit improvement in makeup, and changes in the company's Asian manufacturing footprint could provide multi-year tailwinds. Stock selection in the communication services sector detracted: Alphabet lagged amid concerns over increased spending on technology infrastructure to support artificial intelligence (AI) development and the company's ability to smoothly manage the transition to an AI-enabled Search business model. We like Alphabet's significant barriers and advantages in its core Search business, and the company's ability to innovate at a scale driving growth and creating new adjacent opportunities. Stock selection in the information technology sector detracted: Adobe fell after OpenAI announced a text-to-video offering, Sora, which investors viewed as a new competitor to Adobe's video software. However, we believe Adobe will be able to benefit from leadership in core markets with AI poised to provide incremental revenue growth. We exited our position in Texas Instruments and initiated in VAT Group (a leading supplier of vacuum valves used in the high-tech industry as well as general industrial processes).

Important Information

Risks

The value of your investment may rise or fall, and your capital is at risk.

Any investment in an investment trust involves risk. You should be aware of the following risks when considering investing:

Past performance

Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future returns and does not guarantee future results.

The value of your investment

The value of shares, and any income from them, can fall as well as rise and investors may not get back the amount invested.

Market volatility

The value of the Company and any income from it can fall or rise because of movements in stock markets, currencies and interest rates, each of which can move irrationally and be affected unpredictably by diverse factors, including political and economic events.

Emerging and Developing Markets

Emerging and developing markets can face significant political, economic or structural challenges. The portfolio may experience delays in buying, selling and claiming ownership of investments and there is an increased risk that the portfolio may not get back the money invested.

Concentration

In view of the concentrated nature of the portfolio, the level of risk is expected to be higher than for broader based portfolios and the value may be more volatile.

Smaller companies

Securities of smaller companies may be less liquid, and exhibit more volatile returns, than the securities of larger companies.

Currency

The Company's assets may be priced in currencies other than the portfolio base currency. Changes in currency exchange rates can therefore affect the Company's value.

Charges from capital

Where charges are taken wholly or partly out of the Company's capital, distributable income may be increased at the expense of capital, which may constrain or erode capital growth.

Leverage

The Company may operate with a significant amount of leverage. Leverage occurs when the economic exposure created by the use of derivatives is greater than the amount invested. Leverage may result in large fluctuations in the Company's value and therefore entails a high degree of risk including the risk that losses may be substantial.
